Description

This webinar, organised by UNIMIB focuses on key competences for lifelong learning, with particular attention to digital, transversal, and reflective skills. It will explore European frameworks such as LifeComp, approaches to enhancing employability and reflexivity, and the role of external stakeholders in shaping lifelong learning ecosystems. The session will also present practices in continuing education, highlighting how universities can support learners throughout different stages of their personal and professional development.

Speakers

Barbara Belanova (SUA) – Academic at the Slovak University of Agriculture, contributing to lifelong learning initiatives and the implementation of the LifeComp framework in higher education contexts.

Andrea Galimberti (UNIMIB) – Professor at the University of Milano-Bicocca, with expertise in sociology, employability, and reflexivity in education and work transitions.

Päivi Malinen (Karelia UAS) – Specialist in lifelong learning and stakeholder engagement at Karelia University of Applied Sciences, working on collaboration between higher education and external partners.

Mervi Lätti (Karelia UAS) – Expert in continuing education and lifelong learning at Karelia University of Applied Sciences, focusing on flexible learning pathways and professional development.
