

Title	Writing scientific papers in social and human sciences
Teacher	Prof. (Associate) Elisabetta Biffi, Prof. (Associate) Guido Veronese
Language	English
Short description	The module is aimed at introducing fundamentals to prepare a scientific work. How to identify outlets for publication as well as discerning good science from bad science. <ol style="list-style-type: none"> <li>1. Being a good rider before a good writer</li> <li>2. Identifying suitable and top-tier outlets for publication</li> <li>3. Writing an abstract</li> <li>4. Writing a proposal</li> <li>5. Writing a concept note</li> </ol>
Target audience	1 st year PhD candidates with humanistic, social, and economic background. Hard scientists interested in humanities are welcome.
CFU	2 CFU
Hours	16
Participants (min/max):	15-35
Calendar:	January 7 January 14 February 4 February 25 from 9,30 to 13,30
Notes:	During the module assignments will be offered to the students and considered as a part of the final evaluation